

MINE DISASTER

Squabble Over Officials.
For the past two weeks the Army and Navy football officials have been quibbling as to who should referee the game between the two Army institutes. The Army's candidate for the position, asserting that the Navy men had named three other officials, all of which had been ratified by the Army's own board of officers, declined to grant Army her proposition.

The deadlock between the opposing teams was broken in Washington at a conference held here yesterday afternoon by both President Roosevelt presiding, all the White House staff, and the Secretary of War, Louis C. Wright and Acting Secretary of the Navy Truman H. Newberry agreed that the Evans of Williams College for referee. It was also decided that A. H. Rhapson of

WRIGHT FUNERAL

The funeral of Professor John Henry Wright, who was dean of the Harvard Graduate School of Arts and Sciences, was held at noon today in Appleton Chapel in Harvard yards. The chapel was crowded with distinguished men. The service was conducted by Rev. Dr. Francis G. Peabody of Harvard. A choir of men sang. The honorary pallbearers were President Charles W. Eliot of Harvard, Professor William G. Hale of the University of Chicago, J. A. Perry of Columbia, J. H. Wheeler of Cornell, Thomas Park of Yale, David Brewster of Yale, J. W. Whitely, M. H. Morgan and H. W. Smyth, H. M. Adams, and J. C. Loomis of Harvard, and F. W. Robinson.

CAN YOU READ YOUR WIFE'S FACE

You can? Better not be too sure about it. Wait till you hear what the experts have to say on the subject. You will find it in the American.

This is mainly about wives. What kind of a face has YOUR wife?

Don't get angry! Of course it's a pretty face. No question about that. The question is not asked with any such impudent assumption of doubt.

But, while it is pretty, it may be either square, round or oval. You're noticed which it is, to be sure. And the chances are that you will study it closer than ever to-morrow morning after reading the Magazine Section of the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN.

EXPERTS DISAGREE NOW.

Until now the oval face was supposed to be the index of good nature. But now you must know have split upon the subject at last.

David Belasco, the playwright-manager, for instance, says that, while the round-faced woman typifies amiability, "She doesn't always practice it."

Gutzon Borglum, noted sculptor, declares in favor of the round-faced woman, but Harrison Fisher, the artist, says she is difficult.

Jessie Fowler, physiognomist, declares the round-faced woman is "loving and docile," and smashes along comes George Robinson, diviner specialist, who bluntly asserts that the round-faced woman "can lie as readily as any other."

A most entertaining discussion, in tomorrow's BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN is this debate among experts upon the "Round-Faced Woman and Whether She Makes the Best Wife."

What's that? Haven't a wife? Well, you will find the discussion just as interesting, for you probably are looking for one.

It will be only one of a round dozen of excellent things to read in what will be considered the most instructive and entertaining magazine that has yet supplied something Sunday newspaper.

For the student of physiognomy, as well as the reader of mystery, nothing can be of more interest than the long-deferred solution of the historic mystery of the wife of the Duke of Epsom, a tragedy which shrouded his life before Columbus had his dream of finding a new world.

Speaking of wives, once more, did you know that you can compel you to give her any more money than the amount you willingly give her?

That point is clearly brought out in the article treating of the Howard Knicker divorce case.

Way down in the mountain fastnesses of Tennessee and Kentucky a man's wife is terrorizing those drowsed desperadoes known as the "Night Riders." She is doing it out of revenge. The story is one more sparkling feature of the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN.

The patriotic wives of Austria have joined the army to fight Austria, all ages of wives from the bride of twenty to the widowed matron of seventy, another good "wife" story, in the Magazine Section of to-morrow's BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN.

A child's remarkable legacy—a story of heart interest is revealed in another absorbing narrative.

MORE WONERS OF SCIENCE.

Leaving wives out of the subject for a moment, there will be still another article in the Magazine Section of to-morrow's BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN.

It will be of profound interest to scientists and to the afflicted throughout the land that one describing how surgeons can now graft bones, arteries, eyes, brains and even whole organs, into and upon the human body.

If you haven't ordered from your newsdealer to-morrow's BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN with its Magazine Section, do so at once. It will be worth your while. It will have time to read the magazine tomorrow, save the first moment of leisure.
